

MOBILE FOOD VANS

Whether you're running a major construction project or responding to an emergency, transporting your crews from a remote job site to the nearest restaurant can be a difficult process and cost precious hours of productivity.

Hulcher Services solves this problem by bringing the food to you with the mobile food van. The mobile food van is a self-contained, climate-controlled kitchen on wheels.

Equipped with commercial-grade cooking and refrigerating systems, the van can deploy within 60 minutes of your call. Once on site, it can operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Hulcher can supply tents, tables, chairs and outside lighting to provide a comfortable place for your crews.

Between meals, the van can serve as a place for meetings or as a break space for workers to escape the elements. It can be deployed on its own or in conjunction with Hulcher's mobile command centers and environmental response trailers.

The food van makes it easy to close out the project as well. Rather than having to process hundreds of meal receipts, your food expenses are consolidated on one bill, saving you time and giving you more control over costs.

Hulcher's mobile food van solves the problem of feeding your crews at remote locations and saves you time and money. Call today and see how our food van provides the ideal solution to your crews' remote dining needs.
